

Jack Sullivan

Jack Sullivan, a member of the Engineers Club for more than 60 years and a prominent architect, died Dec. 18 at the age of 93. His son-in-law Dan Repperger wrote aptly of him: "Jack set a good example on having an active life in retirement as demonstrated by his travels, taking classes at Sinclair and performing many volunteer activities. Jack thought the Engineers Club should always be supported via charitable gifts. He was generous in his contributions to this club. Jack was a great wit and storyteller. He was especially proud of his battle in the 1950s to save the old courthouse building in Dayton from being demolished. He was key in the preservation of the classical architecture."
